Mekanika Fluida Bruce R Munson Pdf 19.pdf New uses for plantarflexor mechanomyographic signal in gastrocnemius muscle. The purpose of this study was to determine whether a plantarflexor mechanomyographic signal of the gastrocnemius muscle could be used to describe the activation level of the muscle. Twenty healthy subjects were instructed to flex their ankle dorsiflexion 30 times. While contracting the gastrocnemius muscle, mechanomyographic signals and electromyographic (EMG) signals of the gastrocnemius were simultaneously recorded. The root mean square (RMS) value of the mechanomyographic signal, the activation ratios of the rectus femoris (RF), vastus lateralis (VL), biceps femoris (BF) and soleus (SOL) and the maximal voluntary isometric contractions (MVICs) were calculated. The amount of muscle recruitment (AR) and the ratio of the activation of the gastrocnemius muscle (AG/L) in the MVIC were also determined. The relationship between the RMS value of the mechanomyographic signal and the contractile properties of the gastroc 0cc13bf012
