Operation The application is designed to be used by the end-user to open and create drawings from drawings stored in an external CAD system, using its API. In that case, the user doesn't need to install AutoCAD, just install the AutoCAD Connector that will use the application for viewing and creating drawings. Another option is to use a cloud-based service which allows the creation of drawings on a remote system, which is returned as a "drawing" which is compatible with AutoCAD. Starting with the 2016.2 release of AutoCAD, AutoCAD Connector now enables drawing creation and editing from the web. Drawing creation can be performed through the web from multiple locations, which include social media sites like Facebook and Twitter. With the 2017 release of AutoCAD, AutoCAD Connector gained a new capability of showing drawing sheets (which can be from a local source) or even from a PDF, from any browser, then load them and edit on them. Compatibility AutoCAD can use files from other file formats, such as other CAD software packages. It can import and export several formats such as: DWG DXF DGN DWG (AutoCAD 2017) DWF (AutoCAD 2017) DWF (AutoCAD 2018) DWF (AutoCAD 2019) DWG (AutoCAD 2020) DGN (AutoCAD) DGN (AutoCAD LT) PDF PDF (AutoCAD) PDF (AutoCAD LT) PostScript SVG macOS versions With the release of AutoCAD 2016, macOS users had the ability to use their native CAD application to open and edit drawings. AutoCAD 2013 had some native support for the macOS operating system. AutoCAD 2012/2011 was installed as a "native" application on macOS. In AutoCAD 2016, Apple introduced a native version of AutoCAD called "AutoCAD for macOS". The previous "AutoCAD Lite for macOS" app has been replaced by this application, which is still an AutoLISP plugin. AutoCAD for macOS includes: CAD environment (environment and tools) Library The new native version of AutoCAD is primarily used to read drawings stored in the native application and to open native file formats, such as DWG, DXF, and PDF. Scutellaria barbata is a common herb in folk medicine for a long time. However, its anti-colitis mechanism is unknown. The aim of this study was to investigate the potential anti-colitis mechanism of Scutellaria barbata polysaccharide (SPS). Colitis was induced by oral administration of trinitrobenzene sulfonic acid (TNBS). Anti-colitis effects of SPS were evaluated by analyzing the weight of the spleen and body, the colon length, histological damage and cytokines in colon tissue. In vitro, cytokines production of murine splenocytes was also detected. The results showed that SPS remarkably inhibited weight loss, colon shortening and histological damage in mice with colitis. The content of IL-6, TNF- α and IL-1 β in TNBS-induced mice was inhibited by SPS. SPS also significantly inhibited TNF- α - and IL-1 β -induced productions of IL-6 and IL-12 in murine splenocytes. SPS possesses the anti-colitis effect through inhibiting the release of pro-inflammatory cytokines and regulating Th1/Th2 cytokine imbalance in mice with colitis. This study suggests that SPS might be a promising drug for colitis therapy. p16INK4A, p53 and p21Waf1/Cip1 are useful molecular markers for endometrial carcinoma in endometrial cytology. To identify biomarkers useful for endometrial cytology, we investigated the immunocytochemical expression of tumor-suppressor proteins, p16(INK4a), p53, and p21(Waf1/Cip1) in human endometrial cytology, endometrial biopsies and endometrial carcinomas. Of the 76 endometrial cytology samples, 26 were positive for endometrial carcinoma; of these, 13 (50%) had squamous differentiation, 14 (54%) had clear cell differentiation, and 6 (23%) had glandular differentiation. Of the 60 endometrial biopsies, 30 were positive for endometrial carcinoma; of these, 10 (33%) had squamous differentiation, 18
